WANTS TO WOMAN READERS

GENERAL TENDENCIES IN NEW MODES FOR COMING SEASON

Freakish Frocks Are Rarely Seen—Graceful Drapery Replaces the Pannier—Peplum Effects Retain Their Vogue—Velvet and Charmeuse.

Now that the leading shops and modistes have held their fall openings, a very good idea has been obtained of the general tendencies in the modes for the new season. For that matter the earlier Parisian openings spread such information broadcast, but those who could not attend the French openings have now seen as well as heard, and on the whole they have seen an uncommonly pretty display of models.

Freaks there are, of course. The freak fashion we have always with us in one form or another, but there is a large percentage of wearable frocks, and many of the smartest models succeed in being original and beautiful without a hint of the bizarre. Even certain designs, a trifle too pronounced for the conservative woman, are undesirable for the reason that one would tire of them quickly rather than because they are freakish.

The woman who does not buy a great number of gowns cannot afford to choose to set it beyond the reach of the woman with a limited dress allowance. And yet the bee of clothes extravagance buzzes madly inside so many bonnets these days that one never knows what may happen when an apparition of a rational woman goes out to buy new frocks.

The foundation of this particular gown is the finest and most beautiful of flesh-colored charmeuse, and it is belted with gray chiffon, elaborately trimmed with gray passementerie. There is a large bow of dull rose velvet ribbon at the back, held in place by a gray passementerie ornament. A long tab-end of the ribbon extends down the back and falls over the long trained skirt.

Other frocks are admirable models, yet are more simple in treatment and detail. One is of pale green charmeuse trimmed with narrow bands of sable. The corsage and tunic, the latter draped at the right side, are of black chintilly lace. The lace drapery on the bodice is held in place by a black velvet lace. At the waistline in front appears a large floral ornament of black velvet.

The pannier, which failed of appreciation because it was awkwardly displayed, is being replaced by more graceful and practical drapery in the form of soft plaits and gracefully arranged tunics which cling closely, showing the outline of the figure. Occasionally the pannier is seen on some of the evening dresses fashioned from supple liberty silk and one lace such as the one shown in the big frock illustrated in one of the small sketches, but the pannier will be very discreetly used on modish frocks this season.

There is no radical change in the general lines of the evening gown. The skirts are a trifle fuller, but not enough so as to alter the familiar straight effect. Even the waistline, which was lowered during the summer, is as often seen high as low, and practically of any height that the designer happens to fancy.

The vogue continues for basque or peplum effects, and is frequently produced by a lace fichu or bodice drapery running down under the skirt to form points or tabs upon the skirt.

Much lace is used on the imported models, and enormous quantities of chiffon are still in evidence, despite the flood of gorgeous brocades and velvets. Tunic over tunic, material upon material, intricate arrangements which often look deceptively simple, are in evidence everywhere, and the amount of money that may be put into the materials of a handsome gown, quite apart from the extravagant prices asked for making, is appalling.

Exquisite fine-creamy lace covers most of the bodice of a black charmeuse frock seen at a recent exhibition. Deep bands of the lace fall over the shoulders, forming a cape, and cross each other at the waist line at the back. Similar bands extend smoothly over the hips and form a pointed tunic at the front. The short, loose sleeves are of black chiffon, bordered by bands of the black charmeuse. This mode has an air of discreet demureness, but its price is exceedingly high.

Another black-and-white model from the same famous designer is made of chiffon velvet. The corsage and tunic of white chiffon are elaborately embroidered with metal and jet beads. The tunic and sleeves are bordered with black velvet, and the skirt is made of the same material. At the top of the high corset belt there is a touch of scarlet satin, which shows through the draped one so distinctive and even audacious that once seen it will always be remembered. This truism should be kept in mind by the woman who goes in quest of gowns this season. There are many really beautiful models that are not spectacular, and yet because of their originality, color scheme, decorative details or lines, would tempt any woman who loved beautiful clothes and yet would not be practical for the woman who has few gowns and so must wear those few often. One new model is a gown on the order just described, but without question it is an effective frock. A woman who carries her clothes well might wear it, but it would be noted by every one who saw it and remembered by every one who noted it. Incidentally, it is expensive enough

BEAUTIFUL HAIR WOMAN'S CHARM. DON'T HAVE THIN, FADED, GRAY HAIR

A Simple Remedy Beautifies and Darkens the Hair. Cures Dandruff.

What a pity it is to see so many people with thin, wispy hair, faded or streaked with gray, and realize that most of these people might have soft, glossy, abundant hair of beautiful color and luster if they would but use the proper treatment. There is no necessity for gray hair under sixty-five years of age, and there is no excuse for any one, young or old, having thin, straggling hair, either full of dandruff or heavy and rank smelling with excessive oil.

You can bring back the natural color of your hair in a few days and forever rid yourself of any dandruff and loose hairs, and make your hair grow strong and beautiful by using Wyeth's SAGE and Sulphur Hair Remedy. For generations common garden sage has been used for restoring and preserving the color of the hair; and Sulphur is recognized by Scalp Specialists as being excellent for treatment of hair and scalp troubles.

If you are troubled with dandruff or itching scalp, or if your hair is losing its color or coming out, get a fifty-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur from your druggist, and notice the improvement in the appearance of your hair after a few days' treatment. Agent, James O'Donnell.

MILADY'S MIRROR.

Two women were standing in the street discussing their relative looks. "Goodness, how young you are! How do you manage it?" "Hot bath every day. Boiling, mind you."

"In hot weather, too?" "And then the speaker ventured the opinion that hot baths were bad for the heart, still further weakening the organs not up to the normal point. So they were, admitted the first woman, but her own heart was strong, and she had discovered that the daily hot bath kept her young, and the hotter the bath on a hot day the cooler she felt afterward. Both women were about the same age, forty-four, but the devotee of hot tubs seemed a good ten years younger than the other.

It would be wrong to prescribe hot baths for all the world of women, for there are undoubtedly conditions when they would be harmful. But daily tubbing in water of some temperature or other is required for looks and health, and if the heart is in good condition the benefits of the hot tub are undeniable.

Building Up Beauty.

So the long dead beauties of ancient Greece and Rome kept themselves fair, and so the beauty of today builds up her looks when she finds they are beginning to wane with time or a fevered life. Every week women anxious for their looks crowd the Turkish baths, boiling and steaming away complexion burs, rejuvenating muscles, lightening their bodies of superfluous flesh, soothing their nerves. And if they are used to such baths, or to some other, preferred kind, they feel as fit as race horses for a week afterward.

About the Cold Bath.

The cold bath is not sufficiently cleansing for the health of the skin, and when there is a predisposition to skin troubles the chilly water tends to increase them. The process called "hardening," which consists in submitting one's system to the shock of cold plunges, is thought, too, the worst thing in the world for any but the most vigorous constitutions.

When there is no convenience for the daily plunge bath it is possible to secure much of the same benefit with a large basin of hot water. The needed thing is to open the pores of the skin and cleanse it of the daily wastes by the free use of soap and water, and brisk friction. A complete sponge-off taken in this way every morning will keep the skin in sweet and wholesome condition. A little aromatic tincture of some kind in the basin bath will add much to its refreshing quality and for this purpose benzoin is excellent, being bleaching as well as refreshing.

Serpentine Crepe

This is the age of light-weight fabrics for women's wear, and Serpentine Crepe is the cotton crepe material that thoroughly fills that demand. Although of dainty texture, it is very durable, while the deep, permanent crinkle gives the effect of much more costly material.

The designs of Serpentine Crepe command the admiration of women of good taste in dress, and the color combinations are as charming as they are varied. As no ironing is required. Simply wash, shake out, and dry, and the garment is ready to wear again. A great saving in labor, time, and laundry expense.

There is a pattern and coloring for every need and every fancy, whether for street and house gowns or for negligee and lingerie wear. Every yard of the genuine has the words imprinted on the selvage. Look for them.

IN THE KITCHEN AND PANTRY

Grape Jell.

Wash the grapes and pulp them, boil the pulp until soft, then rub through a sieve to remove the seeds. Add the skins to the pulp and boil with an equal weight of sugar for fifteen minutes. Turn into small glass jars and cover with paraffin when cold.

Preserved Peaches.

Fill a dishpan half full of peaches, then cover them with boiling water, let them stand three or four minutes, then drain off the water; and the peaches peel very easily. When you have a kettleful peeled make a sirup of one cupful of sugar and two cupfuls of water for every quart. When it boils put in your peaches and cook until a straw will run through them easily, then can as usual. When the peaches are very ripe cut them in halves after they are peeled, leaving the stone in one half. If they are small ones you can put them up whole. In either case leave the stones in, as it helps to give them a nice flavor. If you have a lot of juice left measure it into a smaller bottle, add cup for cup of sugar and boil down for jelly.

Peach Jelly.

The juice of a can of peaches with a gill of lemon juice, making a pint in all, is very nice if when the jelly begins to harden you stir in the peaches cut small. You may cool this jelly in layers, and as each layer gets firm put in a layer of fresh peaches, sweetened and cut small. Pour over more of the cool but not stiffened jelly and continue until the mold is full. When firm and cold serve with whipped cream.

Many beautiful ribbons have been shown recently. They are in velvet brocade, and in coloring, design and quality they frankly surpass anything ever produced.
